Associate Professor (promotion track) or Full Professor in English Linguistics

The University of Luxembourg is an international research university with a distinctly multilingual and interdisciplinary character.

Founded in 2003, the University of Luxembourg is a research university focused on tomorrow's major societal challenges, including digital transformation, medicine and health, and sustainable and societal development.

With over 1'000 doctoral candidates among 7'500 students as well as 300 professors, the University distinguishes itself with its international and multilingual character, an interdisciplinary approach, and a personalised learning environment. The Faculty of Humanities, Education and Social Sciences (FHSE) brings together expertise from the humanities, linguistics, cognitive sciences, social sciences, and educational sciences. Scholars from across 20 disciplines are working within the Faculty.

Along with disciplinary approaches, a very ambitious interdisciplinary research culture has been developed.

The Faculty's research and teaching focuses on social, economic, political and educational issues with the common goal of contributing to an inclusive, open and resourceful society.

The FHSE offers seven Bachelor's and twenty Master's degrees and hosts a doctoral school providing students with the necessary knowledge and high-qualified skills to succeed in their future careers.
